

As a youngster, Brittany Molina grew up sweeping hair in her mother's salon. As she watched, Molina wanted to be just like her mom. She quickly learned that there really is something magical working with salon clients. Her mom taught her that clients are like precious gems that we should cherish and take care of while sharing creative artistry and unmatched quality service.

Originally from Miami, Brittany Molina attended and graduated from the Robert Morgan Cosmetology School at the age of 15. Mrs. Pilgrim, one of her instructors saw that after just one week, Molina's creativity and passion were incredible. So, she quickly and personally connected her to the owner at the prestigious La Puma – Intercoiffure Member salon. By the age of 17, Molina was heading up the advanced education program for the same salon. Molina was inspired to eventually open her own salon after growing up watching her mother work as a successful hairstylist, platform artist and salon owner. As a mentor, her mom was part of the L'Oréal Professionnel Artistic Team, assisting to create fashionable hair designs for some of America's top hair designers for stage presentations throughout the USA.

Brittany Molina started Brittany's Hair Specialists with a dream and no money. She borrowed money from her mom and her friend's mom. With only $4000 and big dreams, Molina opened in fall 2001 and she has been building on her dream ever since. She has always had a passion for creative hair design and has studied with some of the very best hairstylists and salons across the world to help guide her own career. With some important adjustments, she changed directions and founded Brittany's Spa Salon in 2002. She has always remained on the cutting edge of style, fashion and technology, while offering each of her salon guests the best in complete client satisfaction. She is one of the only Jacksonville salons to offer both Great Lengths Hair Extensions' Ultrasonic and Thermal techniques along with SO.CAP. USA Hair Extensions' warm and cold fusion bonding methods.

Molina personally trained on creative haircuts and haircolor with some of the most famous hair designers in the world. One being Luis Llongueras of Barcelona, Spain and the other being Vivienne Mackinder, one of the most highly respected international leaders and innovators in the hairdressing profession today. Molina also attended the L'Oréal Professionnel Haircolor Trophy event in London, England – best of the best stage and award show. Molina began her professional career as an educator and artistic team member working for L'Oréal Professionnel for five years.

Molina's salon team has experienced advanced education opportunities with Profound Haircare, Fred Segal Beauty of Beverly Hills, Vivienne Mackinder, Yves Duriff, Will Bostwick, Terry Hanson, Jo Blackwell, SO.CAP. USA Hair Extensions, Great Lengths, Whirl-a-Style, L'Oréal Professionnel, Alexandre de Paris, Dermalogica Skincare, Salon Today 360 and many more.

Molina has continually attended many beauty business, marketing and management training sessions to improve her own leadership skills. She worked as an educator on the Profound Beauty Design Team. Molina is currently a celebrated educator and representative for Whirl-A-Style. In 2008, Molina returned from advanced educational programs and professional photography sessions in New York, Washington DC, Fort Lauderdale, Atlanta, Charlotte and Paris.

Over the years, Molina has earned local, national and international respect, being published across the globe in both consumer and professional beauty trade publications. Her creative haircuts, haircolor, hair extensions, upstyles and fashion forward hair designs have been published in Salón Plus Magazines, Inspire Stylebooks, Passion International Stylebooks, on HairstylesDesign.com and many others. She and the Brittany's Spa Salon Team have regularly been recognized as one of the 'Top Salons In The USA' by numerous national consumer hair magazines and local Jacksonville media outlets including Jacksonville Magazine, WJCT TV, News4 Jacksonville, Fox30 Action News and was recognized as a Jacksonville, FL "Company That Cares" and awarded for being one of the top businesses in the area to participate in charities. You will also see her hair design credits listed in the Washington Wizards Cheerleaders 2009 calendar.

Molina surrounds herself by positive people who encourage and teach her to successfully maintain her own celebrated Intercoiffure salon. To be accepted as an Intercoiffure Mondial salon, hair designers must first present a series of models as well as to pass incredible scrutiny through a series of interviews before being accepted into the membership of this elite organization. Prospective members must have already achieved a high level of national prominence with hair design artistry for stage, fashion and media exposure.

Celebrated salon industry role models like Vivienne Mackinder, Geno Stampora and Joe Blackwell only scratch the surface of her true inspiration. Today, Molina still enjoys the inspiration she is rewarded with by training new talent and watching them grow to become successful in their own right as great hairstylists. Molina notes, "Being a great hairstylist takes passion, dedication, discipline, creativity and very hard work to develop your craft. Seeing their passion helps me become excited and motivated over and over again. The professional beauty business is all about helping new hairstylists and growing them so they have great careers. I am proud to have had so many great mentors as well as to myself having now become a mentor to so many other career hair designers."

With a goal of getting out from behind the chair someday to become a recognized national educator for some of the top professional haircare companies, Brittany Molina is well on her way to accomplishing many of her own endless career goals.
